The Pleasure, Power and Process of Journaling:

Journaling is a journey. Many people view journaling as the ramblings of a budding teenage girl or the memories of a senior citizen. Yet, journaling is much more than simply intermittently jotting down one's thoughts and feelings. Journaling, when done with a purpose, is the journey of self-discovery. The course includes three workshops, each with approximately 60 minutes of instruction, 30 minutes of guided journaling and 30 minutes of discussion. During the course each participant's journal entries are personal and private, but the process of discovery is a gift that everyone in the group will share, allowing all participants to learn even more. All will emerge from The Write Your Life Workshop empowered.

Session Outline

I. Journaling With a Purpose -Define your "why"-What's your resistance?-Easy steps to get started In-class writing assignment: Discovering my self. Homework writing assignment: Coming to terms with my past.

II. Finding Your Voice-Develop your hidden writer-Tips to make writing fun -Getting unstuck In-class writing assignment: Accepting and affirming myself. Homework writing assignment: Healing emotional wounds.

III. Making the Most of Your Journaling Sessions-Setting goals-Protecting your writing time and space-Taking your writing to the next level In-class writing assignment: Experiencing each moment Homework writing assignment: Creating my ideal life.

The Instructor

Anita Paul is a journaling expert, an author's coach, a freelance writer and the author of three books. She coaches professionals in Corporate America and successful entrepreneurs to become published authors. Through her Write Your Life program, she shares the pleasure, power and process of journaling to help people create their ideal life and the book they've been wanting to write. For aspiring authors, Anita provides strategies for writing and publishing a book and utilizing it to establish their expertise. Her insight into the process of writing and storytelling invigorates audiences and inspires them to find the hidden writer within and to make their dream of becoming an author a reality.
